Tulare County Office of Education announces:

County Superintendent Praises Governor's Education Funding Agreement as "Good for the Students of Tulare County"

Visalia: Tulare County Superintendent of Schools Jim Vidak says he's "very pleased with the give and take" that was a part of the state's recently announced education funding agreement.

"I've often said that a good, healthy tree needs to be pruned in order to stay healthy," says Vidak. "I think the analogy applies to this agreement and its long-term implications for education throughout the State of California, and particularly, Tulare County.

Vidak believes that maintaining per pupil funding increases -- including cost of living -- year over year is a key element for protecting the future of education, and arguably, the state.
